

WE MUST ALWAYS BE ON THE LOOKOUT FOR THE PRESENCE OF WONDER (EB WHITE)

Outstanding Differentiation For Learning in the Classroom
(Jayne Bartlett)

Differentiation is something I think I always wanted to be better at ... and when I got better ... I wanted to be better still! Personalising the access to learning is a skill that takes time and actually deserves our time. This book is very practical (a common theme throughout all of the advent recommendations). It unpacks all parts of lessons and supports clear thinking and strategy to apply differentiation techniques. 138 pages of well organised ideas that will develop your ability to differentiate for a purpose.

A THOUGHT FOR YOUR CLASSROOM...

Find that google image or quote that evokes thought – relevant to your subject. Display it on the screen as students enter your learning environment.

Make sure that today's task assortments are on slips of paper in an envelope. Students chose their envelope and independently get started on their learning activity. NEVER underestimate the power of the envelope !! It is a well-used wonder if it is not overdone!
